

SECRETARY OF NAVY DENBY RESIGNS FROM CABINET

Farmers' Institute Opens in Dixon Tomorrow

Public is invited to the people of Dixon and vicinity, in fact all who are interested, are invited to attend any and all meetings of the institute or the household science branch. The program is one of the strongest ever arranged for such an institute, men and women of national repute and acknowledged leaders in their work having been engaged for addresses and instruction.

Several hundred farmers and their wives from all over the state have signified their intention of attending the Dixon institute, which it is hoped will be one of the most successful in the history of the organization.

Miners' Convention Postponed for Month

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 18.—The Illinois State Miners' convention scheduled to be held here March 4 has been postponed until April 8, or later, according to Peoria mine officials. No reason is given for the postponement.

The national scale committee of the international organization of which Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Miners is chairman, is thought somewhat responsible for the postponement of the state convention. Farrington, with the entire membership of the national scale committee and a committee of mine operators, is to meet in conference at Jacksonville, Fla.

The April convention of Illinois miners will be one of the most important in the history of the organization. The limitation of state president's powers, the efforts of Alexander Howatt, deposed state president of the Kansas miners to reenter the ranks of the miners union, the Ku Klux Klan controversy which resulted in the state and national organization excluding members of that organization from the miners union and the discontent, prevalent for years among those styled the "radicals," are issues already talked of as material for the convention.

L. V. L. Report on House Members in the 35th District

The Legislative Voters League, an anti-Small organization in Chicago which criticizes the last legislature for not re-districting the state so that Cook County could control the legislature, blasts Governor Small from every possible angle and opposes the $100,000,000 good roads measure, has issued its report on the members of the legislature whose terms are expiring this year. The report on the Thirty-fifth district is as follows:

HENRY C. ALLEN—Representative (Rep.) An intelligent and industrious member who damaged his voting record by having himself recorded as "present" on bill appropriating money to carry on the interest suits and by failing to vote on motion to override governor's veto of the park civil service bill; in other respects his record is good.

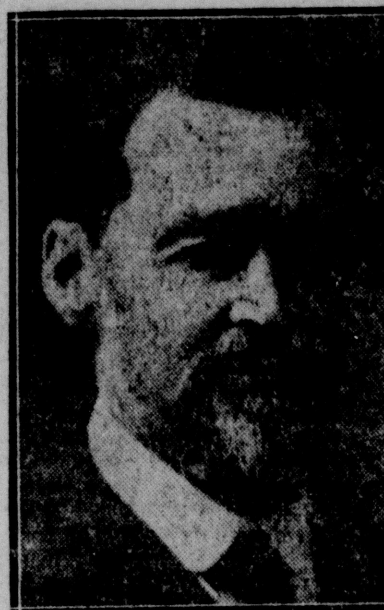

JOHN H. BYERS—Representative (Rep.) Fairly creditable voting record.

JOHN P. DEVINE—Representative (Dem.) Democratic floor leader; an able and valuable legislator.

BULLETIN. By Associated Press Leased Wire Washington, Feb. 18.—Organization of the legal machinery to handle the oil lease suits was completed today by Senate confirmation of Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia as special government counsel.

By Associated Press Leased Wire Washington, Feb. 18.—Institution of legal proceedings growing out of the oil inquiry was one legislative step ahead today when the senate took up the President's nomination of O. J. Roberts of Philadelphia, to act as special counsel for the government.

Despite opposition to Mr. Roberts headed by Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, republican organization leaders were confident his nomination would be confirmed by about the same majority as was given Saturday to that of Atlee Pomerene of Canton, O., the other lawyer selected for the oil cases.

Chairman Lenroot denied today a widely published story that sensational development had to the calling of a meeting today of the senate oil committee.

The chairman said there had been no change in the committee's plans and that so far as he knew the situation remained just where it was when the ten day recess was taken Friday.

DEBAUCH ON WOOD ALCOHOL NEARLY FATAL TO YOUTH

Young Transient is In Critical Condition at County Jail.

Clyde B. Thornton, aged 33, a transient, is in a critical condition at the Lee county jail from the effects of drinking several ounces of denatured alcohol. The physician attending him, however, at noon today stated that he believed the man would recover. A second man, whose name is unknown, is believed to be near death at some point between this city and Clinton, Ia. Clinton police at a late hour today reported that they had not picked up such a man.

Thornton was picked up late Saturday evening by Officer Harry Jones who found him staggering about in a semi-conscious state on Galena avenue between First and Second streets. He was led to the police station and collapsed on the floor when helped into the building. The odor of denatured alcohol was strong and a physician was immediately summoned. For some hours it was thought that the man would not recover but this morning he appears to be much improved.

Bought Poison Here

The police took a full quart bottle of the poison liquid from Thornton's clothing and a smaller bottle, which had been partially emptied. Another bottle which bore the label of a Clinton, Ia., drug store, had been emptied. Thornton told the police that he thought that the end was near and explained that when he came to Dixon, he was with a man, whose name he did not know, who was drinking wood alcohol. His companion, according to his statement, secured two bottles of the liquor here and started back to the Northwestern depot to catch a train west. The police made a search of the railroad yards but were not successful in locating the second victim.

Thornton went into a local drug store Saturday evening and purchased a half pint of the poison liquid. He returned a couple of hours later and told the druggist that he was employed by the Northwestern and purchased a quart of wood alcohol, which he said he used in a blow torch. This morning he was fined $5 and costs in police court for being intoxicated and was sent to the county jail for ten days to recover from his debauch.

"INSANITY" TO BE DEFENSE OF W. J. LINCOLN

Pleaded "Not Guilty" When Arraigned in Court Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire Aurora, Ill., Feb. 18.—Warren J. Lincoln, the lawyer-florist, who confessed to the murder of his wife Lina and her brother, Byron Shoup, today pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge William J. Fulton of the Kane County circuit court at Geneva. He said he had no funds to employ counsel and the judge named Harvey Gursel and N. J. Aldrich, the leading members of the Aurora bar, to defend him.

The defense Lincoln has indicated that he will make insanity. He will not deny that he killed his wife and her brother, whose heads he sealed in a block of cement. But he will maintain, he said before coming into court, that "my brain was on fire when I killed. Something outside of me drove me to do what I did."

Indications are that the trial will go over to the May term of court as State Attorney Charles M. Abbott said that a special jury will have to be summoned to hear the case. The jury summoned for the present term is now hearing criminal cases on a calendar that does not include the Lincoln case.

Counsel appointed to defend Lincoln and State's Attorney Abbott went into a conference after Lincoln had entered his plea.

They consulted as to the date that should be fixed for the trial.

Lincoln was entirely composed when he was brought into the court room about 10:30 o'clock with a batch of other prisoners.

He walked at the end of the procession with Deputy Sheriff Cecil Riley. Many persons who had gathered to see arraigned the claimed grandson of a great president, did not recognize him as a prisoner. He wore a neatly pressed blue suit with a silk handkerchief in the breast pocket. His shoes were highly polished and he carried a velvet hat and a white pocket. They took seats on the right side of the court room while the other prisoners sat on the left. Then it was that there was general recognition of the man.

As the other prisoners were arraigned and pleaded, Lincoln cupped his ear to hear. He seemed much interested but made no comment.

FALL IS FATAL TO PATIENT AT STATE COLONY

Chicago Man Suffered Fractured Skull in Epileptic Fall.

Edgar Stillman, a patient at the Dixon state hospital, died at the institution hospital last evening at 6:30, as a result of injuries received in a fall which he sustained last Wednesday while engaged in scrubbing a floor in one of the cottages in the epileptic colony. An autopsy was performed at noon today in the Staphylo-Meyer mortuary which disclosed a fracture at the base of the skull.

The deceased, who has been a patient in state charitable institutions since 1885, was stricken with an epileptic attack while engaged in scrubbing a floor last Wednesday and fell striking the left side of his head. He was taken to the hospital ward immediately and death relieved his suffering last evening.

Coroner Samuel J. Wetston conducted an inquest over the remains of Stillman today. The jury returned a verdict of death due to a fracture at the base of the skull sustained while in an epileptic convulsion. The body will be sent to Chicago for interment.

HANGING POSTPONED By Associated Press Leased Wire Nashville, Ill., Feb. 18.—Walter C. Cochran, convicted wife murderer who was scheduled to be hanged today was granted a last minute postponement by Judge Bernreuter. The postponement was on the plea of Cochran's counsel, for an extension of time in which to perfect an appeal to the state supreme court.

GRIFFIS TOLD TWO DIXON LADIES HE'D RECEIVE PUBLICITY

Was Fellow Passenger on Zeeland on Way to "Get" Bergdoll.

"You'll read of me in the biggest papers of the land," was the promise made to two Dixon ladies early in June by one "C. H. Griffis," a passenger with them on the steamship "Zeeland" which sailed from New York, June 3, 1922.

The "C. H. Griffis" was none other than Lt. Corless H. Griffis who was arrested and imprisoned in Germany after an unsuccessful attempt to kidnap Grover Bergdoll, notorious slacker, from which imprisonment he was recently released and returned to the United States, and the Dixon ladies to whom he made his fulfilled prediction were Mrs. Anna E. Feltes and her daughter, Miss Helen.

Ate at Sam Table.

Griffis and a companion, Clifford Wopwer, both of Hamilton, Ohio, ate at the same table with Mrs. Feltes and daughter on the trip over, and so had many conversations with them, and recently when they saw a picture of the young officer who had tried to kidnap Bergdoll they at once recognized him as their erstwhile fellow-passenger.

The two young Americans told the Dixon ladies they were going to France to write an article on "The Doughboys' Return to France." Griffis saying he would do the writing and Wopwer would take pictures of points of interest. It was during one of these conversations that Griffis made his forecast of nationwide publicity to come to him.

The Dixon ladies were thrown into the company of the young lieutenant and his companion constantly and were among the last to shake hands with them when they left the boat at Cherbourg, France.

"The report that I will enter motion pictures is erroneous."

HAYNES ROASTS RICH VIOLATORS VOLSTEAD LAW

Says They Are "More Dangerous" Enemies of Life of Nation.

By Associated Press Leased Wire Chicago, Feb. 18.—A plea for greater cooperation of law enforcement agencies in administering the Volstead act and for strict observance by the people, especially the "well-to-do and influential citizens" as an example to others and to aliens, was made by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes in an address today before the citizenship conference.

Mr. Haynes characterized the action of Mayor Dever in cleaning up the "wet" spots in Chicago as a demonstration of "the efficacy of proper co-operation of local and federal officials," and declared the work done in Chicago and Philadelphia "is but an illustration of what can be done in the most difficult sections when an honest, sincere, cooperative effort at enforcement is made."

"It is beginning to be realized," he emphasized, "that the responsibility for enforcement is a joint responsibility."

Mr. Haynes characterized the "well-to-do and influential" citizens as the "more dangerous" of non-observers and he was not so much concerned, he said, about the problem of liquor consumption among the other classes, since the "bootleggers boast that their clientele is from among the elite." If these "so-called leaders" feel themselves above the law, he added, "they become just as dangerous to the life of the nation as the most undesirable types which burrow from beneath and seek to undermine it from below."

The Illinois citizenship conference is only one expression of a nationwide impulse for good government, integrity of law and orderly procedure. F. W. Smith of New York, secretary of the Committee of One Thousand, declared in an address.

A minority of the people, enemies of prohibition, are seeking to defeat the 18th amendment by "excessive violation" he asserted.

Predicts Mob Rule Unrest in the world, he continued, had resulted in mob rule of eight European countries and the full force of such lawlessness has not yet reached the United States. But it will come, he asserted, adding that every violator of the prohibition amendment is a silent partner of the anarchist.

"Bootleggers ought to be put in jail, but those who buy liquor illegally should be given a double sentence," he said.

"The citizenship must be aroused to a new sense of individual obligation to cooperate in enforcing these laws," he said. "The educational program must be enlarged until the youth are made aware of the true facts about the history of prohibition and the sanctity of law and courts. The religious organizations must be quickened anew to realize that a vicious conspiracy is being attempted to rob them of the victory they won in 1918. But deeper than all, the moral idealism of our folks must be lifted. Violation of fundamental law is only an index of moral laxness."

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED BY MR. COOLIDGE

Asst. Sec. Roosevelt to Retain His Post He Announced Today

BULLETIN. By Associated Press Leased Wire Washington, Feb. 18.—Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy announced after half an hour's conference with President Coolidge today that he would not resign as the result of the retirement of Secretary Denby. "I have just been to see the President and I am not resigning," Mr. Roosevelt said.

It is expected that the effective date of Secretary Denby's resignation will be March 10.

There was nothing to indicate today that President Coolidge had given any thought to a successor to Secretary Denby. In some quarters it was said he would be urged to appoint another Michigan man to the place—perhaps either C. B. Warren, who has been offered the post of ambassador to Mexico, or former Representative P. H. Kelly.

By Associated Press Leased Wire Washington, Feb. 18.—Edwin B. Denby has resigned as Secretary of the Navy and his resignation has been accepted.

After repeatedly declaring he never would quit the cabinet under the fire of these who have criticized his part in the oil leasing program, the Secretary notified President Coolidge this morning that he was ready to step out.

His decision followed a telephone conversation between the President and Mr. Denby in which all of the latest aspects of the situation were taken over in the light of information passed on to the White House by republican leaders in the senate.

Recently a number of the Secretary's friends also have been consulted by Mr. Coolidge, and they are understood to have advised the President that they fully understood the embarrassment that might result in retaining Mr. Denby in the cabinet while the oil annulment suits are in progress.

Party to Oil Leases Not only is he a party to the oil leases, having affixed his signature along with that of Albert B. Fall, but he repeatedly has defended his part in the proceedings and has declared publicly since the present controversy arose that he believed the contracts legal and would be willing to pursue the same course again.

It has been pointed out to the President that it might appear inconsistent to have a member of the administration holding these views remain in office while the administration itself through its counsel, was moving in the courts to annul the leases on the ground that they were made without authority of law.

The first step in these legal proceedings, injunction suits to prevent further work on the Teapot and California reserves, is expected immediately after the senate completes confirmation of the oil counsel probably today.

Roosevelt May Resign For the same reason, there have been reports that Theodore Roosevelt also would retire as Assistant Secretary under Mr. Denby. Mr. Roosevelt also had a part in the framing of the oil leases.

Retirement of Mr. Denby also revived rumors that the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty would follow within a few days. A resolution relating to him, and somewhat similar to that adopted asked for the resignation of Mr. Denby is pending in the senate and its sponsors are pressing for quick action.

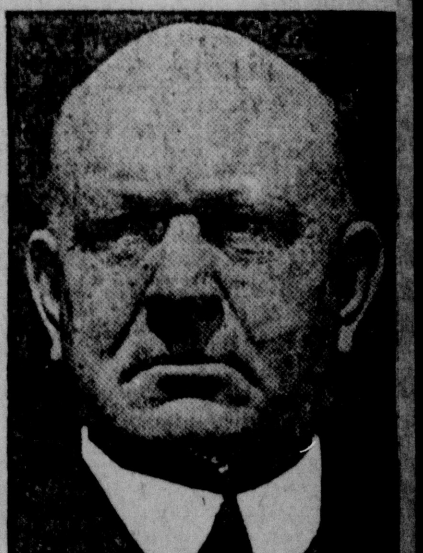

The resolution in which the President was advised to ask Secretary Denby to leave the cabinet was adopted February 11, 47 to 34.

Immediately it was sent to the White House Mr. Coolidge issued a statement declaring such questions lay wholly within the province of the executive, but adding:

"The President is responsible to the people for his conduct relative to the retention of dismissal of public officials. I assume that responsibility, and the people may be assured that as soon as I can be advised so that I may act with entire justice to all parties concerned and fully protect the public interests, I shall act."

Since then many conferences have been held by the President with other officials, senate leaders and friends of Mr. Denby. Two of those most frequently at the White House were Secretary Weeks and C. B. Warren of Michigan, both old personal and political friends of the Secretary. The decision in favor of a resignation apparently was reached soon after Mr. Coolidge went to his office this morning. E. T. Clark, one of Mr. Coolidge's secretaries visited Mr. Denby's office to consult as to what form the announcement should take. Mr. Denby soon afterward left the Navy department by a private entrance and left word that for the present he would have nothing to say.

First Break in Cabinet.

The Secretary's retirement makes the first break in the official family Mr. Coolidge took over intact from the Harding administration. Mr. Denby was an original member of Mr. Harding's cabinet, taking office March 4, 1921. He had served as gunner's mate during the war with Spain and through all ranks and grades from private to major in the Marine Corps during the World War.

Mr. Denby also had a background of personal information as to the situation in the Orient which he drew from the years employment in the international customs service in China. His father, Charles Denby, of Evansville, Ind., was American minister to Peking at the time.

His executive functions at the Navy department were such that the task of directing deliberations of American naval experts who helped frame the technical clauses of the naval militia treaty developed on Assistant Secretary Roosevelt.

Today His Birthday. Mr. Denby was born in Evansville, 54 years ago today. He passed through the public schools there and graduated from the University of Michigan.

When he entered the cabinet he was connected with the legal firm of Denby, Kennedy & O'Brien of Detroit. He began his political career when he was elected in 1907 to the Michigan house. He was chosen to the 55th congress as a member of the house from Michigan and served from 1905 to 1911. He later was a member of the Detroit charter commission and when the United States entered the war he enlisted as a private in the Marine Corps and was sent to the marine corps training camp at Parris Island where virtually all of his service was rendered, the only exception being a trip to France in 1918 as an observer of French methods of training.

Although a provisional major of the marine corps, reserve division at the end of the war, he resigned before he became Secretary of the Navy. He carried with him into the navy department, however, strong opinion both as a lawyer and as an enlisted man as to disciplinary processes.

Loyal to President. An outstanding characteristic he displayed as a member of the cabinet was his loyalty to the policies of the President.

Secretary Denby fought many bitter battles with the congressional committees during his tenure of office in his effort to keep the authorized personnel strength of the navy up to the point which the department felt was necessary.

From the beginning of the oil lease inquiry the secretary maintained that the lease itself, wholly aside from any possible question of corruption that might be involved, was of vast importance to the navy and the nation. He was convinced that the holding of reserve oil supplies in the underground pools of the naval reserve lands was an impossibility, that the oil was being drained off through operations or surrounding private wells.

LICENSED TO WED. The following marriage license have been issued by County Clerk F. G. Dimick: Henry G. Kurz of Reynolds township and Miss Grace Schaller of Ashton; Charles W. Mills of Sublette and Miss Malvina Schemmacker of Chicago.

Who has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Turner, was joined the latter part of the week by Mr. Turner, both returning to the city last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Seavey Pleasantly Surprised

Mr. and Mrs. Al Seavey, who reside near Woonsocket were happily surprised Friday evening by a company of about fifty friends who called to give them a farewell party, as they are to move to a farm near Dixon the first of March.

The happy affair was planned by Mrs. Lee LeFevre. The evening was pleasantly spent in games and music, and a very tempting picnic supper was served with cake and fruit salad as the last course. The neighbors all regret very much the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Seavey from their neighborhood.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—Silver Polish.

Old gas bantles make excellent silver polish. They should be applied on an amp cloth and the article should be rinsed in boiling water containing a bit of ammonia. Then rub dry with a chamois.

Polishing Nickel.

The nickel portions of your range should be polished occasionally with a paste of whiting and alcohol.

St. James Aid Held Meeting Wednesday

The St. James Aid Society held a very pleasant meeting with Mrs. Frank Rhodes Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 15th. As it was impossible for both the president and vice president to be present, Mrs. Bahen presided at the meeting, which was opened by the singing of hymns, followed by a Bible reading from the 20th Chapter of Proverbs. A roll call and minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. As there was no business on hand the meeting adjourned by all repeating the Lord's Prayer, after which the members served blocks for a quilt in which all are very much interested.

The hostess served tempting refreshments, after which all departed for their homes, feeling they had spent a pleasant and profitable afternoon.

Members of the Aid please remember that election of officers will take place at the next meeting which will be with Mrs. E. G. Topper, on Wednesday, March 5th.

SPORT AND TAILORED

Not every suit for this season is strictly tailored. Here is a combination of a sport and tailored model that combines the best points of each and achieves a charming originality. The material is navy charmeuse and the stripes are of white kid.

The Peter Pan collar and the unusual cuffs are not only youthful, but are unusual.

According to the formula of this season, all thought is lavished on the coat, and the skirt is straight, narrow and short.

YOUNG PIANIST PRESENTS RARE CONCERT SUNDAY

Arthur Koch Demonstrated Ability in Recital Here.

Arthur Koch, 21-year-old pianist, demonstrated brilliant ability in a concert at the Dixon theater Sunday afternoon which was a revelation to those who heard him—unfortunately the audience was not nearly as large as the young man merited, but whatever disappointment he may have felt in the number of his auditors was not manifest in his playing, for he presented an exceedingly heavy program with rare skill and marvelous interpretation.

The young pianist's program was made up of the masterpieces of the most famous composers, and called for perfect technique and understanding, both of which he displayed to a marked degree. His audience was entranced with his playing, and all are sure that he will become a famous star in his profession. He played an Apollo grand piano, furnished hurriedly by Theo. J. Miller & Sons, and he gave the instrument fine praise at the conclusion of the program.

The recital was given delightful variation by three charming vocalists. She sang Denmore's "Spring Song," Arne's "The Lass with the Delicate Air" and Bishop's "Lo! Hear the Gentle Lark" with remarkable skill and tone. Mme. Heas-Burr at the piano and Charles Keiman, flutist, accompanied her.

Graduate Nurse Finds "The Perfect Remedy"

Graduate of National Temperance Hospital, Tells of Remarkable Case Where TANLAC Has Proved Effective.

"From my long experience as a professional nurse, I do not hesitate to say I consider TANLAC the most efficient and natural stomach medicine and tonic to be had. It is undoubtedly Nature's most perfect remedy," is the far reaching statement given for publication, recently by Mrs. L. A. Borden, Seattle, Wash., a graduate of the National Temperance Hospital, of Chicago.

"I have used TANLAC often in treatment of my patients any experience has been that for keeping the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning properly, and for toning up the system in general, it has no equal.

Tells of Case.
"About a year ago I had a lady patient who could not keep a thing on her stomach fifteen minutes, no matter what I gave her. I gave her TANLAC and after the sixth bottle she could eat absolutely anything she wanted without the slightest bad after effects.

"I had another patient who simply could not eat. I got him started on TANLAC and by the time he finished three bottles he was eating ravenously and had regained sufficient strength to return to work.

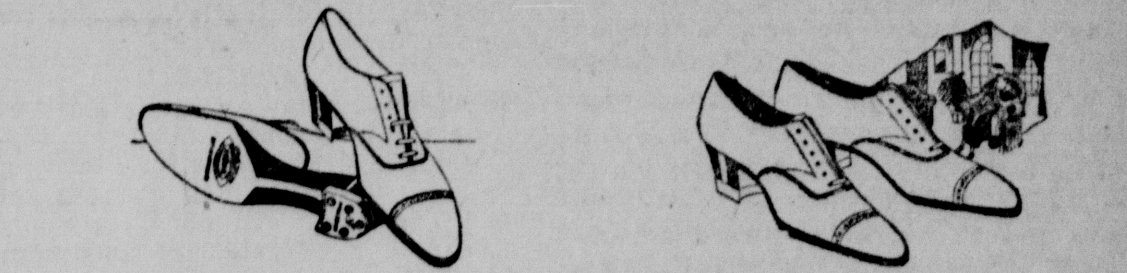

"These two instances are typical of my experience with TANLAC. A confidence in TANLAC is unlimited. TANLAC IS FOR SALE BY ALL GOOD DRUGGISTS. OVER 40 MILLION BOTTLES SOLD. ACCEPT NO SUBSTITUTE.

SUNDAY MOVIES.

A group of Dixon citizens are promoting a movement to close theaters and other forms of indoor amusements where admission is charged on Sundays. The backers in this movement must be credited with honest motives and high ideals and we do not question their sincerity of purpose in this action for stricter Sabbath observance. The Telegraph believes, however, that in this case the Sunday closing movement is over-zealous and inopportune, and we do not believe that the city commission will pass such an ordinance nor that the voters of Dixon will sustain such a proposition at the polls.

The Telegraph takes this position with the full realization that such position will be highly unpopular with a class of people whose good opinion we respect and value, but we feel that it is necessary that we state our opinion on a question that is of such great local interest. For reasons set forth in this editorial we cannot see justification for closing the Sunday shows in Dixon at this time.

Sunday dances are mentioned in the petition. Of course there should be no Sunday dances, but there are none in Dixon so there is no argument there.

The ordinance bars all Sunday entertainments indoors where admission is charged. It applies to such an entertainment as the musical given a few Sundays ago by Madame Hess-Burr and her students—a very high-class and beautiful affair which drew a capacity house at the Dixon Theater. It would apply to the Rock River Assembly if the city limits of Dixon were extended a short distance so as to take in Assembly Park auditorium. Do the people of Dixon wish to vote for such an ordinance? The people who attend these entertainments sanction them and make known their approval of them by their attendance. Are the patrons of these entertainments irreligious breakers of the Sabbath? We do not think so.

But even were the ordinance aimed solely at the moving picture show, The Telegraph believes there is no justification for it at this time. We say "at this time" because the picture shows in Dixon are thoroughly decent and well regulated and we believe that even the critics of the Sunday shows will admit it. If, at any time, the moral tone of the shows becomes such that they cannot be praised we believe they should be closed and we will go further and say that they should be closed week days as well as Sunday any time they fell below a decent standard. We do not think there is any danger of such a situation while the present management has charge. Under present conditions we can think of a great many worse places than the Dixon Theater for any boy or girl on a Sunday night.

Some people are alarmed at what they term the present day drift toward non-observance of the Sabbath. Perhaps there is a tendency that should be checked. Certainly Sabbath observance is a mainstay of the church that must be upheld. But is not the present day tendency merely the result of a broader and more tolerant but equally deep and sound and wholesome Christianity that is coming with the changing times. You know there was a day, not so long ago, when not only was it considered a sacrilege but it was unlawful to kiss your own wife on Sunday. If we had movies in those days it would probably have been a case for capital punishment to attend them even on a week day. But the American public will never go back to the days of the blue-laws and it is not only futile but it injures the cause of Christianity to attempt it.

Most earnest Christians believe that it is no violation of the law of God when on Sunday, besides the devotion and worship which is the first order of that day, there is recreation, rest, diversion and decent and wholesome amusement. Many people who do not attend the Sunday show are tolerant enough to realize that others have a right to if they wish. Many a patron of the Sunday show works too hard earning a living the other six days a week to go on those other nights. And many of the Sunday night patrons are in church, as they should be, on Sunday morning.

Automobile is a great deal more expensive form of entertainment and amusement than the moving picture. It is denied to many who can, however, afford to go to the Sunday night show. Will all those who would close the Sunday show be willing to forego their Sunday drive, their golf, their parties and all sorts of amusement and recreation? These are all a desecration of the Sabbath if we are to accept the strictest and most narrow interpretation.

The Dixon Theater was built at great cost by Manager Rorger with the aid of Dixon people and it was built with the supposition and understanding that Sunday shows when they are clean and of high standard were acceptable in Dixon. The Dixon Theater is the best advertisement and the biggest attraction ever built in Dixon and the Sunday shows have contributed a great part of its success. The theater management asserts that without Sunday shows it will be necessary to either increase the admission price for the week-day shows or cut down the quantity and quality of the entertainment. Neither prospect will appeal to the patrons of the theater.

We repeat that if the theater should offer shows on Sunday night that were not decent and moral it should be closed, but we submit that the present standard of entertainment in the local theater is such that it is instructive and wholesome and as such is entitled recognition and deserves encouragement rather than discouragement.

The Telegraph believes the good people who are agitating the Sunday closing movement are actuated by only the highest motives and should the majority of the people of Dixon endorse the Sunday closing ordinance we will be satisfied with the result for the majority should rule. If any considerable number of people sincerely believe that this situation or any other should be remedied at the polls it is perfectly right and in keeping with our form of government that an expression of all the people be registered.

The People's Column of this newspaper is open to sane and responsible discussion on the subject from either side of the question, if articles are authentic and we have the author's signature.

N. 2—UP THE BEANSTALK

Nick looked at the magic bean that Silver Wings had given him. It looked like the dried beans that your mother buys at the grocery store for baking, or that little boys shoot through bean-shooters.

Where was the fairy that they had been talking to on the purple thistle only a minute before?

But there was the bean! There was no getting away from that. And, of course, they didn't want to get away from it. For hadn't Silver Wings said that it was the mate to Jack's bean, and that it would grow into a beanstalk just as his had if they would plant it.

"Come and get the magic shoes!" shouted Nick all at once. "The fairy said for us to look for the magic green shoes before we tried to climb the magic beanstalk. We'd better put them on at once. Nancy, so we will be ready when it begins to grow."

Away they scampered to the big stone under the chestnut tree, and there, just as Silver Wings had said, stood the four little green scalloped shoes.

As soon as the shoes were on, Nick knelt down and made a little hole in the ground with a stick. Then he dropped the bean in and covered it up.

But scarcely had he gotten to his feet when the bean began to grow and an enormous green vine with a very thick stem shot up past them like a sky rocket, straight for the sky.

"Come on, Nancy!" yelled Nick. "All aboard for Beanstalk Land where the jolly giants live. I'll go first so that if there are any bad places I can tell you."

They passed the tree tops and the clouds and it didn't seem to be more than two minutes and a half until they came to the place where the beanstalk spread out like a ceiling over their heads.

But there was an opening and they clambered through.

And lo and behold, there they were in Beanstalk Land!

It looked like any other country to the Twins' curious eyes—until they saw a figure coming down the road to ward them—a person of such a size as never, never had it been their fortune to see.

It was as though the church on the corner, steeple and all, had suddenly decided to take a stroll.

"Look!" exclaimed Nick, pointing. "It's one of the giants!"

The giant wore wooden shoes and they went clap, clap, clap when he set his feet down.

Down on earth it must have sounded like thunder.

"Oh, my! I hope he won't step on us," said Nancy, and she pulled Nick down behind a log.

ICONOCLASTS

BY BERTON BRALEY

There is a certain type of goof. Who always has undoubted proof that no great man alive or dead has done the things we think he said, or done the things we thought he did. From Cheops and his pyramid to Henry and his well known flivver. This doubting Thomas will deliver proof that these big men we recall deserve no credit, none at all.

It matters not what name you mention in art, in letters or invention. Or who may be the mighty giants in war or politics or science. These expert knockers will essay to take their credit all away. And give it to some gent unknown. Who was "the power behind the throne."

Perhaps they're right, but I prefer to think my heroes really were. Heroic as I've always thought. And that the things they said and wrought were mostly theirs—and mostly true. I like illusions, so I do. I like my idols, and trust 'em. More than I trust the guys who'd bust 'em!

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN
PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY
CARTON

DEAR SYD:

This has been the most devastating and hectic week I have ever spent in my life. I have never thought it could be possible that an average ordinary man—who at least does not think himself a doubted villain—could have as much worry and trouble over peculiarly personal affairs as I have lately.

I sent you the newspaper clippings on the billboard affair. Could anything have been more unfortunate? By what malignant fate the Acme company just at this time should get into a row with the billboard company, beats me.

Of course, as usual, I had to be the goat. I did not dream that the particular billboard outside my apartment would have the very day I complained of it, Paula Perrier's name slapped across it in black letters.

Bill Gregory came to me and told me he thought I had been very foolish to make such an exhibition of myself over the sight of my old girl's name outside my window, and when I explained matters to him he laughed until I could have choked him easily and looked upon his grinning face turning black, with joy.

I wrote a letter to Paula—because I knew that if I did not she would probably come to my office—and told her I would not be able to see her while she was in town. She would not have it that way at all. She sent me a very compromising telegram saying she must see me.

Then, Syd, I capitulated, swallowed my pride and called up the only woman that I thought could help me out—Ruth Ellington. I told her I wanted to ask her for some advice and also to return the six thousand dollars that I had of hers and apologize.

She told me I had better come over to her office that afternoon and insisted she would not see me under any circumstances if it was not for Leslie. I told her that it was for Leslie that I was asking her advice. She softened a little at this, but I could almost feel the cold air coming through the phone all during the interview. I was on needles and pins until it was time to go to her shop. In doing so I had to pass the Criterion Theater and, Syd, the line in front was nearly a block long, four abreast. Many of the people in the line knew me.

I think I suffered as did those people who had to go down through two lines of tortures and be mauled by them with sticks and stones. It was worse for me, however, because I could not run the gauntlet. I had to walk slowly and act as though I did not mind their curious faces.

I arrived at the lingerie shop door without mishap and was glad when it closed upon me, even though the reception I received was not any too cordial.

Colonel Holmes, soldier and adventurer, returns to England, the land of his birth, when war is declared with Holland. He comes to lodge with Martha Quinn, hostess of the Paul's Head, in Paul's Yard, London.

The colonel asks his old friend, His Grace of Albemarle, to secure for him a place in the army. Albemarle warns him that the name of Randall Holmes, father of the colonel, is on the warrant for the execution of the late king. Therefore it is dangerous for the colonel to secure a commission.

His Grace of Buckingham gives a dinner for the beautiful actress Sylvia Parquharson. Sylvia comes late to the feast and, when she finds the company drinking to excess, flees from the house. Mr. Etheridge tells Buckingham how to win Sylvia's favor.

She came in from the common room bearing a letter that had just been brought for Colonel Holmes. He took it, wondering, then, observing the great seal, a little color crept into his cheeks. He spread the sheet, and read, under the observing eyes of his friends and his hostess.

Twice he read that letter before he spoke. The unexpected had happened, and it had happened at the eleventh hour, barely in time to arrest him on the brink of what might prove a precipice.

"Luck has stood your friend sooner than we could have hoped," wrote Albemarle. "A military post in the Indies has, as I learn from letters just received, fallen vacant. It is an important command full worthy of your abilities, and there, overseas, you will be safe from all inquisitors."

"As a beginning. But you must follow it up. You must reveal your self in a new character. Hitherto she has known you, first by repute and then by experience, a rake, a scoundrel, a villain. You must, your self, be a man of letters, a scholar, a man of letters."

"And the deadly peril?" quoth the Duke gloomily, almost suspecting that his friend was rallying him.

"Where shall I find that?"

"If you wait to find it, you may have long to wait. You must, your self, provide it. A little contriving, a little invention, will soon supply what you lack."

"Can you propose anything? Can you be more than superiorly vague?"

"I hope so. With a little thought . . ."

"Then, in God's name, think."

Etheridge laughed at his host's vehemence. He brimmed himself a cup of wine, surveyed the rich glow of it in the candlelight and drank it off.

"Inspiration flows. Invention stirs within me. Now listen." And sitting forward he propounded a plan of campaign with that racemal readiness of wit that was at once his glory and his ruin.

CHAPTER IX
Albemarle Proposes

NED TUCKER did not long leave his proposal to Holmes unopposed. He sought him in the matter again at the Paul's Head three days later on the Sunday, and sat long in talk with him in the little parlor.

He found the Colonel a little more malleable today, a little less insistent upon serving governments in ease. Still, he did not altogether yield to Tucker's persuasions; but neither did he discourage him when the latter promised to visit him again on the morrow, bringing another old friend of their Parliament days. And on the Monday, true to his promise, Tucker came again, accompanied this time by a gentleman some years his senior, named Rathbone, with whom Colonel Holmes recalled some slight acquaintance. This time they came with a very definite proposal, empowered, so they told him, by one whose name they would not yet utter, but which, if uttered, must remove his every doubt.

"For that, Randall, you will accept our word, I know," said the grave Tucker.

Holmes nodded his agreement, and the proposal was disclosed. It offered him a position which in an established government would have been dazzling. It was dazzling even as things were, to one in his desperate case, driven to the need of making a gambler's throw. If on the one side he probably set his head, at least the stake they offered could hardly have been greater.

And they tempted him further by revelations of how far their preparations were advanced, and how thorough these were.

"And you have answered—what?" he demanded.

"That I will wait upon his grace this afternoon as he requires of me."

"But to what end?" asked Rathbone. "You can't mean that you will accept employment from a government that is doomed."

The Colonel shrugged. "As I have told Tucker from the first, I serve governments; I do not make them."

"But just now . . ." Tucker was beginning.

"I wavered. It is true. But something else has been rung into the scales." And he held up Albemarle's letter.

They argued with him after that; but they argued vainly.

"If I am of value to your government when you shall have established it, you will know where to find me; and you will know from what has happened now that I am trustworthy."

"But your value to us is now, in the struggle that is coming. And it is for this that we are prepared to reward you richly."

He was not, however, to be moved. The letter from Albemarle had reached him an hour too soon.

At parting he assured them that their secret was safe with him, and that he would forget all that they had said. Since, still, they had disclosed no vital facts whose betrayal could frustrate their purpose, it was an almost unnecessary assurance.

They stalked out resentfully. But Tucker returned alone a moment later.

"Randall," he said, "it may be that upon reflection you will come to the error of linking yourself to a government that cannot endure, to the service of a king against whom the hand of Heaven is already raised. You may come to prefer the greatness that we offer you in the future to this crust that Albemarle throws you at the moment. If you are wise, you will. If so, you know where to find me. Seek me there, and be sure of my welcome as of my friendship."

They shook hands and parted, and with a sigh and a smile Holmes turned to load himself a pipe. He was not, he thought, likely to see Tucker again.

That afternoon he waited upon Albemarle, who gave him particulars of the appointment he had to offer. It was an office of importance, the pay was good, and so that Holmes discharged his duties well, which the Duke had no occasion to doubt, there would be even better things in store for him before very long.

"The one thing to efface the past is a term of service now, whereas ever it may be. Hereafter when I command you for some other place, here at home, perhaps, and I am asked what are your antecedents, I need but point to the stout service you will have done in the Indies, and men will inquire no further. It is a temporary exile, but you may trust me to see that it endures no longer than is necessary."

No such advocacy was needed to induce Holmes to accept an office that, after all, was of an importance far beyond anything for which he could reasonably have hoped. He said so frankly by way of expressing his deep gratitude.

"In that case, you will seek me again here tomorrow morning. Your commission shall be meanwhile made out."

The Colonel departed jubilant. So back to the Paul's Head he came with his soaring spirits, and called for a bottle of the best Canary. Mrs. Quinn read the omen shrewdly.

"Your affairs at Whitehall have prospered, then?" said she between question and assertion.

Holmes reclined in an armchair, his legs from which he had removed his boots, stretching luxuriously upon a stool, his head thrown back, a pipe between his lips.

"Aye. They've prospered. Beyond my dreams," said he, smiling at the ceiling.

"Never that, Colonel. For that's not possible." She beamed upon him, proffering the full stop.

He sat up to take it, and looked at her, smiling.

"No doubt you're right. But I've gone without my dearest so long that I have lost all sense of them."

"There's others who haven't," said she; and timidly added a question upon the nature of his prosperity.

He paused to drink a quarter of the wine. Then, as he set down the vessel on the table at his elbow, he told her.

Her countenance grew overcast. He was touched to note it, inferring from this manifest regret at his departure that he had made a friend in Mrs. Quinn.

"And when do you go?" she asked him, oddly breathless.

"In a week's time."

She considered him, mournfully he thought, and he also thought that she lost some of her bright color.

"And to the Indies?" she ejaculated slowly. "Lord! Among savage and heathen blacks! Why, you must be crazed to think of it."

The Presbyterians continued their winning streak in the church bowling tournament Friday evening by defeating the Christian by 149 pins. The Christians lay their defeat to the fact that one of the Presbyterian bowlers was so stimulated by a waffle supper followed by a joy ride that he couldn't help but strike and spare his way through three games. Ashton Team Evens

Series with F. Grove

The Ashton high school basketball team defeated the Franklin Grove five in the second of a series of games on the Y floor Friday evening by a score of 17-27. A week ago the Franklin team won by a point or two, so Friday's game makes it one apiece.

The South Central basketball team took the lead in the grade school tournament Friday afternoon by winning over St. Mary's by a score of 30-10. The South Central team was in its best form and luck followed them throughout the game while the jinx was on St. Mary's heels; luck was against them and they seemed unable to cage the ball on what looked like dead shots. Another big game in this tournament is scheduled for next Friday when the E. C. Smith and St. Mary's meet. This game will throw two teams into a tie for either first or second place.

The Junior "A" basketball tournament Saturday morning was as usual well attended but the scores were a little off. The second game went to the Sure Winners who were hard luck to the Hard Lucks defeating them 2-0.

The Junior "B" gym class basketball tournament Saturday morning was the scene of great numbers and activity. The record for attendance for this year was broken and when lived up the class extended along most of two sides of the gym. The two teams that won a week ago were again successful in pulling down their games, the Pirates winning from the Cobras 14-0 and the Ace Highs getting the best of the Wild Cats 7-2. The games scheduled for next Saturday in this tournament promise to be good as the two leading teams fight each other and the two low teams are also pitted one against the other.

Boys Crowded Big
Building Saturday

Saturday the Y was as busy as ever with its Boys' Department work. Nearly 25 boys were waiting at the door for the opening hour and by 10 o'clock over 100 boys were busy in some department of the Y. Upstairs checkers, billiards, ping pong, ring-o-let and other games held the interest of a room full of boys. Tournaments had been arranged for the boys, which lasted until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. In the gym, the classes were run on schedule time, one class being ready for the floor as soon as the previous class was off. In the basement the boys bowling tournament kept the alleys full while the swimming pool was a regular "ole swimming hole." Even yet, you will sometimes run across a person who asks—what do they do up there at the Y?—You'd be surprised.

ENJOYED SCRAMBLE SUPPER

Friday night the four boys teams in the bowling tournament at the Y. M. C. A. met for a scramble supper. Following the supper the tournament was discussed and it was unanimously agreed that the interest was so keen that the schedule would be run through a second time giving all the teams a better chance to win the George Prescott silver loving cup.

THE SIMPLE LIFE.

Since Charles Wagner wrote his little book on "The Simple Life," many interpretations, good, bad and humorous, have been made in regard to its teachings.

Long before his day, men were living the simple life but there was very little said or written concerning it.

Living the so-called simple life is a wonderful thing for health and longevity. The first thing to start one on the road to the simple life is a thorough health examination to ascertain your actual physical standing. Beware of that little ailment which causes a twitch or twinge in your back or at your "heart strings." Nature is giving you a warning signal. If you don't give it any attention the damaging

This Little World

BY HAROLD MATSON,
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—Somebody back in 1814, or thereabouts, told the builders of this city that "a straight line is one of duty, a curved line one of beauty," and they, being politicians, chose both.

Finding one's way in New York, San Francisco or Chicago is child's play compared to the maze strangers meet in Washington.

Between the curved lines of beauty, with the circles, bends and ovals, and the straight lines of duty, with the squares, trapezoids and triangles, it is a real adventure for a stranger to set out alone.

Radial streets, shooting in all directions from the capitol, give a map of the city the aspect of a boy's drawing of the sun, moon and stars. Intermittently, along each avenue, there is a circle, nearly as big as a foot ball field. The street winds itself around these circles.

"Strategic city," Washington has been called. Revolutionaries or enemies could never make a beeline advance on the capitol.

The street car company should post some such advice as this in their cars:

"If it looks as though you are going away from your destination you are on the right car."

Bound for the capitol building, one sees it on the right, then on the left, behind and ahead. One imagines the car seems there by waiting its way along a swine, a step, a complete turn and glide.

Every car seems to reach the Union Station some place along its route. No matter where you are bound you are reasonably sure to suffer a minute or two delay while your car waits for another passenger at the station.

That's one consolation for the stranger. When he is leaving town he can't help but find the station.

Streets are northwest, northeast, southwest and southeast. When one wants to go to any address—for instance, 21 First street southwest, there is only one way to do it, for a stranger. Get on a street car and watch the signs. He'll get around there somehow.

After one has been here a while he gets into the circle of things.

Conversation and oratory takes on circles. Visit Congress for a while, and you'll find the capitol building, describing millions of circles with their swirling thumbs.

It's a circular road to the White House—literally, in this instance.

And it is said, in the innermost circles, that there is a way of getting around certain legislation with resulting sensations of whirls and more circles!

MORE ABOUT TUBERCULOSIS

by Edward O. Otis, M. D.

VALUABLE EXPERIMENTATION

We hear much in these days of the evils of vivisection and experiments upon animals, but when one considers the inestimable boon conferred upon mankind by the discovery of the tubercle bacillus, was not the sacrifice of a few animals a thousand times justified?

"Everything that has a direct bearing on the prevention of tuberculosis," says Dr. E. L. Trudeau, one of the foremost pioneers and investigators in the great movement against tuberculosis, "everything that has changed mankind's attitude toward it from one of apathy and hopelessness when the infectious agent which produces tuberculosis was unknown and the disease was thought to be inherited and always fatal, to the growing hope of its ultimate conquest we owe to animal experimentation."

The new light had at last arisen after so many centuries of groping in the dark, the true cause of tuberculosis was at last revealed and science had triumphed. All honor to the great investigator who after years of patient and discouraging labor in his laboratory had at last succeeded! We extol the great captains of war who have waged successful campaigns. How much more should we esteem those great investigators like Pasteur and Koch, whose victories mean not suffering and death, but the preservation of life and the conquering of disease.

Nature of the Tubercle Bacillus
In investigating the nature of the tubercle bacillus, it was found that it did not grow and multiply outside of the body, but that it would live a considerable time, for weeks or even several months, in dark, damp, dirty places; that it was readily and quickly destroyed by sunlight and that dry light and fresh air would, after a while, kill it, or at least render it inactive; that a high temperature, that of boiling water, for instance, and certain disinfectants would also destroy it, but that it survived a freezing temperature.

Having discovered the cause of tuberculosis, the next inquiry was how was this germ, the tubercle bacillus, conveyed, or, in other words, how was tuberculosis caught? Not by the mere contact with a person who is suffering from the disease, as seems to be the case in the acute infectious disease, such as small-pox or scarlet fever; nor by the breath, as is sometimes erroneously supposed, but by the only means by which the bacilli can escape from a consumptive person, namely, through the expectoration, or in coughing, when tiny drops of sputum are thrown out, which experiments have proved can contain the bacilli.

Dry Sputum Alone Dangerous
As long, however, as the tubercle bacillus expectation is mixed with the secretions, is wet, the bacilli are imprisoned in this moisture and cannot escape. It is only when the moist secretions, the sputum, becomes dry, that the germs are set free and mix with the dust in the air; then the danger begins. From the foregoing it is obvious, then, that a consumptive who does not have any expectation, as is not infrequently the case in the very early stages of the disease, can give out no bacilli and consequently is not a source of any danger. It also follows that when all the expectation is destroyed before it becomes dry, there is again no danger, and also when the consumptive holds a cloth or some article be-

How to Get the Most Out of Your B Battery

By G. C. Furness
Radio Battery Engineer

SIMPLE WAYS OF CURING DISTORTION

When a vacuum tube is used for audio frequency amplification best results are secured only when steps are taken to prevent the grid from ever becoming positive. The plate is always positive, and the filament is positive at one end and negative at the other. The grid is the balancing and controlling part, and if it also becomes positive the balance within the tube is destroyed. The sounds heard in the telephones or loud speaker then are distorted and unpleasant. Also a positive grid causes an excessive flow of current from the "B" battery, shortening its life.

Different radio sets employ different methods for connecting the grid to the filament. The early method of connecting a one-stage amplifier is shown in Figure 1.

Grid return that is practically certain to produce distortion. Fig. 1. One wire leads from the transformer to the grid, and the corresponding wire from the transformer to the negative filament terminal on the socket. In this case the grid becomes first positive and then negative, as the signals are received through the transformer. When no signals are present, the grid has the same voltage as the negative end of the filament. This is known as "zero grid bias," and results in noticeable distortion on strong signals, as half the time the grid is positive.

For weak and moderate signals this arrangement will assist to prevent distortion. Fig. 2. The grid return circuit will assist to prevent distortion. Fig. 2.

These will be described in the next article.
